1. [REDACTED] has returned from [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] tired but much encouraged about the highly useful information he was able to acquire. Officers of Saigon station participated as speakers in the three short courses [REDACTED] 5X1A9a conducted, and Bob feels that they provided truly expert knowledge about the Communist activity in that country -- knowledge around which he will be able to develop a whole new section for our programs.

[REDACTED] indicates that they had some fascinating revelations and that an institute for study of Sino-Soviet relations has been set up in [REDACTED] at which these people will again be "students."

This entire trip was perhaps the ideal kind of TDY for our staffers -- one during which the benefit is double-edged.

2. I spoke to the association of retired FBI agents at the Police Academy in Los Angeles on Thursday night -- concerning the general subject of "Soviet Foreign Policy Developments." There were about 90 present, many of them now involved in corporate security work, and most of them of an obviously conservative cast. I was introduced to the group by [REDACTED] X1A9a (who, incidentally, bestowed another doctorate upon me!), who was responsible for getting an Agency speaker. It seemed to go well and I am hopeful that [REDACTED] relations with this group -- which is apparently quite helpful to him -- will be helped along somewhat.
